THE STRIKE MUST GO ON.

MESSAGES ACCEPT NO ONE'S RESIGNATION AT PRESENT.

The Supreme Court of the United States Sitting—The Delegates Unable, Amid Much Enthusiasm, Upon a Proposition to Call Out the Engineers, Firemen, Conductors, and Brakemen—Details of the Proposed Arrangement—A Resolution for Adjournment, Fourteenth.

DENVER, Col., July 28.—(Special.)—The Supreme Court of engineers, firemen, conductors, and brakemen which has been in session in this city since Tuesday morning adjourned at 6 o'clock this evening after declaring that the strike must go on.

The decision that the "G" strike is not to be removed from the hands of the Supreme Council will not warrant us in the statement that there is to be no concession or compromise, no concession of any kind whatever. The "G" must come to the front.

The secret work of yesterday marked the agreement unanimously reached after deliberation of the five great railroad organizations—the engineers, firemen, conductors, and brakemen—into an alliance, offensive and defensive, against the railroads of the country, for one of an extra compensation for the hazards of running the heaviest freight trains of the country. The "G" was also settled.

This is to be known as the "G" strike, and will be borne for a few days last week, by the members of the trust to be in the possession of the "G" has been suggested, and to that end the "G" has been changed to the "G" strike. The "G" strike is to be known as the "G" strike.

Chairman McDonald hoped the committee would be ready to report by 10 o'clock this morning. "I prefer not to leave," he remarked this evening, "a matter we have at stake unsettled, but which the same personnel. I believe it will ready for the grave of an act." The main reliance is entertained by the delegates from other roads.

Asst. A. L. Johnson of Omaha, engineer of the Union Pacific: "I do the best thing under the sun for our railroad men, to will work successfully I can say." This opinion was indorsed by J. M. Egan, one of the Union Pacific.

Brotherhood John W. Brown of the Louisville & Evansville said that the Saturday would be unfavorably received by 1-4 weight of the system. He lives in Minneapolis, Minn. "It is a substantial system we have all earnestly longed for."

Jesse M. Turner, a Baltimore & Ohio fireman, returned to Martinsburg, W. Va. Fraternity of Chicago, William A. Lewis of Chicago, E. J. Geary of Fostoria, O. B. Jones of Texas, and two other engineers and firemen from the glee conspicuously. As for an order to discharge none was out a single fireman since was left a single fireman.

The railroad people are as independent as ever.

"The 'G' system," said W. J. Harris, General Manager of the Cincinnati & St. Pa., "has to fail establishment of engineers and firemen. We are absolutely able to handle a heavy business. Our loss in connection is more heavily due to failure of crops last year than from the effects of the strike, although, of course, we know the strike was an expensive affair."

"What do you think of this plan of federation as formed now?"

"I don't care to discuss it. I will say this, however, that a federation, if properly constructed on a good, sound business basis, will be a good thing for railroad employés. I have always been in favor of federation of all trades. As to the matters reached to continue the strike to a finish thing. Our road is running and will never give in. Our present these men appreciate that condition of things the better it will be for them in the end."

Tuesday morning dinner was issued by the officials. It reads as follows:

If you don't want to be killed or have your property destroyed or any interfered with, don't go to work. Remain at home, attending to your business, and keep your families together. Don't be deceived by the railroad companies. They are not going to run their trains. Don't be deceived by the railroad companies. They are not going to run their trains. Don't be deceived by the railroad companies. They are not going to run their trains.

Chairman McDonald heartily indorsed the plan. "I pray him our hands," he remarked this morning, "a matter we have at stake unsettled, but which the same personnel. I believe it will ready for the grave of an act." The main reliance is entertained by the delegates from other roads.

The following resolution was presented by Chairman William Arnott of Division 2, Toledo:

Resolved, That the meeting monthly adjourn subject to the call of the Executive Committee, and that the duties of the Executive Committee be and during the adjournment of the Supreme Council.

The resolution was received with shouts of approval. Secretary-Treasurer Arnott when the vote was taken the ballot was taken the ballot with the deafening shouts of approval.

J. Stevens of St. Joseph, the Chairman of Arbitration appointed by the brotherhood engineers for the convention, said:

"Some men on this system in an unguarded moment have said that the Supreme Council of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Firemen, and Conductors—the engineers, firemen, and conductors—into an alliance, offensive and defensive, against the railroads of the country, for one of an extra compensation for the hazards of running the heaviest freight trains of the country. KROGER'S DEADLY BOMB.

HE THREATENS OFFICE FOR WHOLESALE MURDER.

He and His Associates Indicted—Statement of Bradford and of Gladstone Barnes Before Grand Jury—Face of the Fourth Defendant—Arrest of Davis, the Fourth Man, Who Had the Dynamite—Mrs. Kroger Raised to Help Explode the Hidden Explosive.

The hand of the law is tightening its clutch upon the notorious Kroger dynamite conspiracy. A fourth man is now a captive as well, with the best assumption that the prosecuting authorities have ever had for the early solution of the grand jury for the safety to which matter. The penalty of conviction is three years in the penitentiary. Gladstone, the informer, is believed with the men, but will turn State's evidence upon the trial and will escape with a minimum punishment. The indictment charges generally that John Kroger, Frank Gladstone, Joseph Barnes, and Frank Gladstone did conspire and unite to commit a certain felony—to wit, murder. Further counts charge conspiracy with intent to aid Judge Harry Baker Kersaw, and Inspector John Bonfield, and the final count charges conspiracy with intent to kill persons other persons to the jury unknown. The prisoners names are John Kroger, Frank Gladstone, Joseph Bradford, Nathaniel Barnes and Frank Gladstone. The indictment was returned yesterday afternoon, and nearly two hours' consultation between the jurors and counsel before Judge Kersaw this morning.

Inspector Bonfield was the informer Gladstone before the grand attorneys in his investigation before the grand jury. Bonfield's services were nearly those of an interpreter, Gladstone being unable to make himself clearly English. He and Bonfield's attorney, worked in conjunction, Gladstone's testimony being the main evidence brought which made of the indictments were framed. Bonfield was the first witness. He gave the general outline of the movements, with which the reports of The Tribune are already familiar. He told in person. The manufacture of Harry Orchell, and himself for the use of dynamite, the police, or the dagger as circumstances should warrant. He detailed the preparations of the conspirators. The purchase of dynamite, the many visits of Barnes, the manufacturing of Orchell's home to Adam Bergen (sic) & the arrest of the prisoners and the finding of dynamite and bombs in their possession. Inspector Bonfield, the remainder of the witnesses, whose arrest is described elsewhere, to and had a consequent delay in the case that he was the man who supplied the others with dynamite. Upon investigation it was found that he had twice purchased dynamite in quantity, the last time he was a prisoner and a statement of the powder this making it easy for him to provide the explosive without comment. The last purchase was of seventy-five pounds May 26, 1900, of the Atlantic Powder Company at No. 31 Dearborn street. The dynamite was of the grade known as extra No. 1, and was in half-pound packages. Albert Kroger, a brother of Harry Kroger, is in the possession of bonds and other State, mortgages in the possession of Gladstone. The remaining fifteen packages had gone into the manufacture of bombs. It was upon this information of bombs. It was upon this information of Bonfield and put in hab of Gladstone. The bonds were found, eight in the possession of Kroger and seven in the possession of Barnes. The remaining fifteen packages had gone into the manufacture

QUEEN'S JUBILEE WEDDING.

[illegible]

London, July 25.—Sir and Mrs. Gladstone attended their golden wedding today. The streets in the neighborhood of Downing street, in the shape of arches, telegrams, etc., greeted the aged couple as they passed to open their carriage. The inside were given a reception at the residence of Sir Edward Watkin, M. P., and were present with a distinguished company gathered to honor the occasion. Lord and Lady Rosebery, Lord Herschell, and many other prominent persons were present. The Queen sent a telegram of congratulation, which was read by Mr. Gladstone, who also received the congratulations of Parliament. Lord Rosebery proposed the toast of the evening, the health of Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone, which was received with great enthusiasm.
